NAVAL MILITIA DRILLS. Excellent Results of the Massachusetts Contingent in Boston Harbor. CLASS OF MEN WHO COMPOSE THE MILITIA-THE NEW YORK DRILL AT NEW LONDON AN PVIDENCE THAT THE NAVY IS BEING APPRE-

Correspondence of The Evening Star.

New Londer, Conn., July 29, 1891. The recent drills of the "white squadron" with the naval militia have attracted more general interest in the east than any naval affair for years. The squadron sailed from Hampton Roads the last of June and arrived at Boston just in time to enter the barbor on the morning of the Fourth of July. The people of Boston were prepared to receive the squadron with also she came in with him.

all honors. Yachts, tugs, steamers crowded The market was reached between 7 and 8 with people and sailing boats, all flying as many flags and pennants as there could be found a ice for, met the white ships as they steamed the harbor. After they came to anchor a rfect stream of people came out to visit the ips. Every one was received and the officers what the "new steal cruisers" are, and judging from the remarks of the visitors I should say that they went away pleased and confident that we are at last to have a navy worthy of such a Massachusetts were quartered on board the re-ceiving ship Wabash at the Boston navy yard. During the week, from July 5 to 12, they were drilled on board the sanadron of evolution in all the various drills that fall to a "blue jacket" lot. The militiamen were told off in 's crews and drilled at the guns just as the regular crews are. The gun divisions of the men-of-war first went through the drills while the militiamen looked on; then the tables were rned and the militiamen took their places at e guns. They were ready and willing to to have shown the excellence that only long practice gives, they were still characterized by mickness and precision. Here, men who were sed to cruising in their own yachts and with ever a need of turning their hand to manual door, took up the handspike and tackle and ried and pulled like old tars. They took their course of instruction at all classes of guns, from the big eight-inch barbette guns of the Atlanta and Boston to the gathings. Then a day of boat drill followed, all the fittings of the eats for abandon ship, arm and away boats, istant service and cutting out were explained, and then when each man was told his duty these arious evolutions were gone through with. THE ATTACK ON DEER ISLAND.

On the third day of the drills the squadron steamed down Boston harbor to Deer Island, where parts of the militia and ship's crews were ashore to defend the island with small arms, howitzers and gatlings, while the balance of the crews formed the attacking party and took possession of the island. All the vessels fiercely bombarded the island with blank charges while the landing force disem-barked. The forces were quickly formed and ployed, the enemy was party intrenched, but position was flanked and the victory dechied in favor of the attacking party. Then followed a day's target practice with great guns. The accuracy of the multta gunners, considering the fact that they were totally unmainted with great guns, was quite remarkable and brought much favorable comment from the officers of the squadron. A night attack on the ships was then planned. As the squadron was anchored in the harbor the atthey chose and try to "torpedo" the ship, the rule being that if the search light was turned on them and five shots from a Hotchkiss: one. or six-pounder, and twenty-five small shots fired at them before they reached ship, that boat was "hors du combat" and could not take any further part in the action. An umpire on each ship thus put an attacking boat out of the game by firing a rocket over the boat in question. The whole harbor was crewded with boats of every description carrying people anxious to see the display and none were disappointed. The attack was allowed to open at 9 in the evening and continue one hour. At the appointed time the attack began. Boats shot out from the shore and headed for the cruisers, but the keen search lights sweeping the horizon brought them into view long enough for the gunners to fire the required number of blank cartridges, and the ket of the umpire indicated that the boat this took pince in a crowded harbor, with many nooks and shelters where a torpedo boat might start from and notwithstanding the fact that distance of any in the squadron but the search lights sed it up and resulted in its capture. On e day of the drill the squadron steamed wn the harbor and allowed the militia guns down the harbor and allowed the minita guns crews an opportunity to shoot at a target 3,000 yards away. The shooting was, as I said before, much better than any one had a right to expect and must have been quite gratifying to the militia men, as I am sure it has been to the officers of the squadron.

WHO COMPOSE THE MILITIA.

The question came up before the drill, "What kind of men compose the militia?" This is easily answered—bankers, business men, lawyers, doctors, journalists, yachtsmen, in fact men from all the higher avocations of life—intelligent gentlemen, anxious to be ready to serve the nation on a moment's warning, should such a thing become necessary. Their commander was the gallant Commander Soley, known to all he navy people and most of the people in Nashington as "Jack Soley." He is a brother of the assistant secretary of the navy and an on-naval officer. It was chiefly through the efforts of Commander Soley and Commander Miller of New York that the naval reserve drills n board the squadron were brought about.
rged on by such officers and actuated by tracest
egard for the country's welfare, these men and pull on gun tackles and ship's gear; yet it was not altogether a thankless task, for so many brilliant young men gathered together and roughing it in sailor fashion could not but see the funny side to it; and it was a novel experience to say the least. For the young ladies of Beston these embryo sailors had all the glamour and romanous absolutes to do not see the funny side to it; and it was a novel experience to say the least. For the young ladies of Beston these embryo sailors had all the of Reston these embryo sailors had all the glamour and romance about them that make Cooper's novels enticing or Maryat's sea tales brothers and cousins and lovers act as "blue jackets," and thought the "sailor suits were just too levely for anything." Almost every gur had some favorite ship and wore the cap bend of the ship conspicuously as a hat band, beit, or other adornment. When the ships left best, or other adornment. When the ships left there was many a sigh of regret from the fair ones, but the tears will disappear and light into a smale for the next "ship that comes in." The people in Boston were liberal, and the officers of the squadron received every attention that could be desired, so that the city was left with regrets and a firm desire to visit this "hub of the squares." the NEW YORK NAVAL MILITIA.

From Boston the squadron proceeded to New York, where the Chicago, Concord and torpedo heat Cushing were waiting to join them. The admiral's flag was transferred from the Newark to the Chicago and the details of the drill for the New York naval reserve were arranged. The reserves were mustered on board the steamer Stonington on the 16th and on the next day the squadron steamed from its anchorage in North river around the battery and out through Hell Gate on its way to New andon, where the drills are taking place on sher's Island. The wharves and piers were rewided with people anxious to see the mag-afficent sight, and cheer after cheer greeted us naticent sight, and cheer after cheer greeted us as we moved slowly down the river. Many steamers were dressed in flags and the colors were constantly being dipped in answer to the salutes of passing steamers and yachts. The departure from New York and the passage for miles down the sound was a huge ovation to the nation's finest fleet, and as the friends of the navy increase it is an evidence that the people are beginning to resilte the need of ships of war and are willing to give their support toward building them. At Fisher's Island the same program is being followed with the New York reserves that was followed at Boston with the reserves there. lowed with the New Tork to reserves there. ler the drills are over the squadron will re-After the drills are over the squadron will return to New York, and according to the latest authorized statements will leave there about August 15 for a cruise to Boston, Newport, Portsmouth, N.H., Ear Harbor and Halifax. The Philadelphia and Petrel of the North Atlantic squadron are at Halifax and the Kearsarge of the same squadron is undergoing repairs at Portsmouth, N.H. The other ship of that squadron, the Enterprise, is at Ear Harbor. This squadron will mobilize in about two weeks and prepare for evolutions along the coast, lasting about six weeks. The present militia drill will be the last for this year and the squadron will get a well-carned rest from mnitta drill will be the last for this year and the squadron will get a well-carned rest from the hard work of the last four weeks. Some of the ships are in need of repairs, and it is hardly probable that the present squadron can be held together longer than until September. Rumors of a foreign cruise raise the hopes of the officers, only to find later that the foreignness of the cruise is limited to Long Island sound.

Still the present work brings the navy prominently before the people, and if any increase in the general knowledge of the public in regard to the navy has been made the officers and

A FARMER'S WIFE MISSING. She Has Disappeared With the Team of a Neighboring Farmer.

Inspector Swindells of the detective corps has been requested to institute search for Mrs. Agnes Glover, who is reported missing from her home, not far from Wheaton, Montgomery county, Md., from the same vicinity where Philip Haviland, a farmer, disappeared a few years ago. Mrs. Glover is the mother of five children and her home is not far from the Wheaton post office. Her husband bas a farm there and earns his living in that way. Mr. John E. Lett is another farmer and a near neighbor to the Glover family. Yesterday morning he was coming to the city with a load of fruits and vegetables and as Mrs. Glover wanted to come to the city o'clock and a stand was secured where Farmer Lett could dispose of his farm products. He succeeded in getting rid of most of his supply, and toward noon he went away from the marand toward noon he went away from the mar-ket, leaving Mrs. Glover in charge of his wagon. He was gone some time and when he returned he found that both Mrs. Glover and the team action, and thinking she would return soon, he waited, but as she did not come he went home in the afternoon fully expecting to find his team at home, but to his surprise the team had not reached there nor had Mrs. Glover reached her home.

Mrs. Glover had complained of having the headache earlier in the day and her husband thought she had probably been taken sick and stopped at the house of a friend. He, however, instituted search, but without the desired result, as the only trace of his wife to be found was that between 2 and 3 o'clock vesterday afternoon she called at the house of Mr. Henry Jaeger, 154th street southeast, and when she left there she said she was going

This morning her husband thought she would surely be at home, but when he left there about 8 o'clock he had received no tidings of his missing wife.
All along the road he made inquiries, but no one had seen his peculiar-looking wagon, nor had any one seen his wife.

The police in the different sections of the city were notified to make inquiries, but up to 1 o'clock nothing had been heard of the woman

Mrs. Glover wore a dove-colored dress and a black straw hat. The wagon had no top on it. The body of the vehicle was painted blue white, two wheels were painted yellow. The other wheels were painted red.

GLEN ECHO CHAUTAUQUA.

Good Program for Today and Excellent Attractions for the Closing Tomorrow.

GLEN ECHO. July 21, 1891. Last night the large number of visitors were treated to a rare talk on "Raphael and His Work," with views of his paintings and frescoes. Following the lecture there was a reception in the art studio, which was beautifully decorated with ferns and vines. Prof. Tadd. his niece Miss Borst, and Mr. and Mrs. Fribley. were the hosts of the evening and succeeded in making all enjoy themselves. A collation was most brilliant reception of the seasou. Great preparations are being made for the reception to Miss Clara Barton in the hall of philosophy this evening from 6 to 8 o'clock. The hall will be profusely decorated with flags, flowers and electric lights and every one is in-served and the guests unanimously voted it the flowers and electric lights and every one is invited to be present.

The afternoon lecture will be by Robert Niven on "Robert Browning, the Poet Philosopher," and tonight there will be a concert by the Philharmonic Quartet and others. It will be under the direction of Mrs. H. H. Mills and promises to be a pleasant entertainment. The artists are all well known in Washington. First soprano, Miss Meads; second soprano, Miss Law; first contralto, Miss Shepherd; second contralto, Miss Stidham, assisted by the Misses Frech (elecutionist) and Dobond contralto, Miss Stidham, assisted by the Misses Frech (elocutionist) and Dobbins (contralto) and Mr. Victor Johnson (violinist). His Parlor Rifle Made Trouble. Joseph Goodloe, a young colored man, had $2.50 the other day, and not having any better use for the money, as he supposed, he pur-chased a parlor rifle, and has been amusing himself with it since he made the purchase Yesterday the rifle got him in trouble. He was on a lot near the riding academy and when he discharged the rifle the bullet went in the direction of Wm. Yatton, superintendent of the riding academy, and that gentleman thought that the shot was directed toward him. He went toward Goodloe and the latter reloaded the rifle as though he intended to fire another shot.

Goodloe was arrested and the case was heard in the Police Court today, Goodloe being charged with assault.

He denied the charge and claimed that he shot at a tin can. Mr. Yatton was equally positive that the shot was fired at him. Judge Miller told Goodloe that he had better take an ax and break up the rifle; that it was no good to him, except to get him in trouble and gave him two months in jail.

POTOMAC BROKEN DOWN.

Mr. Dwyer's Colt Will Not Be Seen Again on the Turf.

Potomac has broken down. After several attempts to bring the great colt to another race Mr. Dwyer has decided to turn him out, and the chances now are that the racing public has seen the last of the noblest son of St. Blaise. His leg has been troubling him all season and Mr. Dwyer has never been sure in any of Potomac's races that the colt would not pull up a hopeless cripple.

After his race in the Barnegat stakes with Reckon and Polfiena July 21, at Jerome Park, he was lame and his lameness has increased since, until it was found impossible to get him to a race.

Potomac has had a most brilliant career.

Potomac has had a most brilliant career. As a two-year-old he was only beaten in the junior champion by two short heads and he won the rich futurity. At the sale of the late August Belmont's stable Potomac was bought by Mr. M. F. Dwyer for $25,000.

Potomac this year won the realization, and he is the only horse that has won both the futurity and the realization, the richest two-year-old and the richest three-year-old events. If Potomac is permanently disabled he will be turned over to Mr. Milton Young, and will be retired to the McGrathiana stock farm in Kentucky. Potomac is superbly bred, by St. Blaise, dam Susquehanna, and he goes back to the very best speed-producing families of England and America.

Thomas Leach, Jim Edwards, James Dobson Ephriam Duckett and Edward Gray were ser enced to the work house by Judge Miller toda se vagrants.

It is announced by officers of the District Assembly, K. of L., that all differences between the Carette Company and organized labor of this city has been satisfactorily settled.

Butler Jamison and Henry Holly, arrested for disorderly conduct, plead guilty in the Police Court today and were fined $5 or fifteen days each.
